The complete commitment of Dr. K. M. Vasudevan Pillai (CEO - Mahatma Education Society) to nurturing India's tomorrow has seen the Group carve a niche for itself aspect of education. The institutions are spread over 5 locations - Chembur, Borivali-Gorai, Panvel, New Panvel, and Rasayani - and serve over 30,000 students annually. The group employs 2000 teachers and over 1500 dedicated support staff. Dr. Pillai's journey is best understood through

There are some lives that find purpose in transforming those of others. By the virtue of their vision and commitment, they seek to implement change that is holistic and life-changing, change that, in its end goal, is meaningful, measurable, and sustainable. The life of Dr. K.M. Vasudevan Pillai is one such example. As the founder and CEO of the Mahatma Education Society, a not-for-profit trust established in 1970, he has built 48 institutions, from schools and international schools to colleges of arts, science, and commerce, architecture, engineering, management, media studies, vocational education, and teacher education.

Today, the Pillai Group has a presence in every important his initiatives in institution-building. Benchmarking the highest standards of teaching and pursuing a path of continuous innovation and upgradation, the institutions are committed to the broader task of nation-building.

Over the years, true to Dr. Pillai's vision, the Pillai Group of Institutions has silently not only lived up to its reputation as imparting one of the best education in the city but also contributing, in its small way, to the nation's development. It has been constantly advancing academic crucible among its students fostering the principles of uncompromising academic excellence for developing successful professionals with excellent career growth and universal recognition.
